'Cat burglar' hitting Broderick neighborhood

West Sacramento police warned yesterday that a series of residential burglaries is occurring in the city's Broderick (northeastern) area.

"Since Jan. 11, eight homes, duplexes or apartments have been the target of a break-in," stated a press release from Lt. Dave Farmer. "The crimes occurred between the hours of 11:30 p.m. and 7:00 a.m., while the occupants of the home are asleep. Entry into the home is being made by prying open a window to the residence."

Farmer recommends residents check all doors and windows to make sure they are secure before going to bed. Suspicious people may be reported to the police department by calling 375-6474 (emergencies should be reported by dialing 9-1-1).

The suspect is a male, age 18 to 30, from 5' 1" to 5' 11" tall, with a thin to medium build and dark hair.

Bridge half done, traffic pattern changes

West Sacramento's new bridge, connecting its northern and southern halves just west of city hall on Stone Blvd., is half complete. The upper portion of the span is the true part of the structure; the lower portion seen above is a support platform for construction. The picture is taken looking eastward from a pier at the Port of Sacramento.

From the City of West Sacramento

The Daniel C. Palamidessi Bridge & Industrial Blvd. Extension Project is over 50 percent complete. A construction closure of Industrial Blvd. from Terminal to Cebrian Streets will be made to provide for sanitary sewer, storm drain and street reconstruction. This closure will also affect the current intersection of Stone Blvd. and Industrial Blvd.

If you are trying to get to City Hall or Stone Blvd. from Harbor or Industrial, you will need to turn on Del Monte from Harbor Blvd. or turn on Terminal St. from Industrial Blvd. You will then intersect with Cebrian Street and go south to Stone Blvd. and City Hall. This is a permanent change. After the project is complete it will not be possible to make a left turn from Industrial to access City Hall and Stone Blvd.

If you need to get to Industrial Blvd. or Stone Blvd. from Jefferson Blvd., you will use Stone Blvd., turn right on Cebrian and proceed to either Terminal St. or Harbor Blvd. After the project is complete, you will be able to make a right turn from Stone Blvd. onto Industrial Blvd.

Completion is scheduled for late summer. Should you have any questions, please call Brown & Root Building Company, the construction manager for this project, at 375-6666.

Up to two-thirds of waste treated by sewage plant isn't sewage at all

By Steve Marschke

About two out of every three gallons of liquid flowing through West Sacramento's sewage plant during the worst parts of the rainy season aren't sewage at all, said the city's public works department.

Instead, the bulk of this sewage line traffic is groundwater which has seeped into the pipes.

But that's not terribly unusual for a city surrounded on three sides by water and which is home to a high groundwater table, adds the city's public works director, Jerry Lo.

The additional flow comes from leakage into city sewage pipes, as water in the soil forces itself into the cracks between pipes, or into the cracks in broken pipes.

This results in flows of "two to three times normal flow" during extreme wet weather, including this January's storms. The South River Road sewage plant has a rated capacity of 7.5 million gallons per day, but has a peak capacity of 18 million gallons per day to account for extreme conditions.

"Several times a year, that level of flow might be reached," said Lo. "But all sewage treatment plants are designed for two and a half to three times their dry water flow levels," he added, so West Sacramento's situation is not abnormal.

Although the level of "infiltration" by groundwater in West Sacramento is not unusual, he added, the city performs over $1 million per year in sewage pipe replacement to keep ahead of major problems, said Lo. The city's sewer lines, while in worse shape than its drinking water lines, are not unusually decrepit, he said.

Police detail handling of rice mill accident

■ Scandinavian firm plans demolition of old rice mill project this month; police explain response to missing child later found dead

By Steve Marschke

West Sacramento residents are still looking to answers on lingering questions on the death of a 13-year old local girl, apparently in an accident as she played on the roof of an abandoned rice mill along the city's riverfront. Although some of the details may never be made public because of the involvement of juveniles in the case, a police lieutenant yesterday added explanation of the department's response.

The 13-year old, Heidi Ubrick, had been playing at the mill site on South River Rd. on the afternoon of Saturday, Jan. 18, with two male teenagers she knew. She apparently fell over a hundred feet to her death.

Conflicting stories from juveniles hampered the search, which involved a search of the rice mill area, a publicity campaign in local media (creating a story covered throughout the Sacramento region and as far away as at least the San Francisco area), and following-up of many "I may have seen her" leads conveyed to the police by witnesses.

Lt. Dave Farmer said that an initial 9-1-1 call by a motorist shortly after 1 p.m. on the day the girl died was followed up by local police. The motorist reported seeing children playing on the roof of one of the buildings, clearly visible from the nearby Pioneer freeway bridge westbound near the Sacramento River.

"An officer did respond," said Farmer, referring to the call which came in perhaps an hour before the girl died. "He drove Jefferson Bridge to close on Thursday a.m.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, which maintains the set of locks which make up the Jefferson Blvd. bridge over the barge canal in West Sacramento, has notified motorists that the bridge will be closed Thursday morning, Feb. 13, from about 9 to 11 a.m.

Residents intending to travel between the southern (Southport) half of West Sacramento and the north are advised to either make that trip before 9 a.m. or prepare for a long detour south before crossing the Sacramento River and returning again to the north.

The Corps plans to use Thursday's bridge closure to perform maintenance on the locks, which were put in place to allow boat access between the river and the Port of Sacramento, with its deep water channel to the Bay Area.

The locks are not used for this purpose currently, although they are maintained in working condition.

West Sacramento's police and fire departments have been notified of the impending bridge closure so that they may plan to have emergency personnel in the Southport area if needed during the time the road is closed.

Foreign trade zone operator out of business

By Steve Marschke

The company operating the foreign trade zone in West Sacramento has gone out of business.

The California Free Trade Zone, operating along Industrial Blvd. in West Sacramento near the port, stopped operating last month. The 133,000 square foot warehouse facility at the site allowed deferment of customs payments for goods that are to be imported and exported, helping to ease cash flow for manufacturers and international traders. But in actuality, the facility was used more as a common warehouse for clients including computer vendors, and less for its customs benefits.

Ted Connolly was the primary investor in the trade zone company, which operated under contract with the port.

But the port may become peripherally involved with one or two new foreign trade zone ventures, since the duty-free benefits of such zones are seen as enticements to shipping and manufacturing business.

The Hewlett-Packard company has asked the port to be its sponsor in an application to create a foreign trade "subzone," conferring customs benefits on warehouse sites in Roseville (near HP's regional headquarters), Lincoln and Woodland.

"This entails three sites over 6.2 acres and 3.2 million square feet of space and 11 buildings" in those towns, said Ray Jones, a West Sacramento resident and member of the port commission.

Jones said he was disappointed that Hewlett-Packard was going to be spreading its foreign trade warehouses among Lincoln, Woodland and Roseville, without having tried to establish any warehouse space in the port itself or in West Sacramento.

"I told them I was disappointed they are going to Woodland, Lincoln and Roseville, and they're asking the port, which has property here and a warehouse here, to sponsor them, without trying to do anything here," said Jones. "I called our (West Sacramento) community development department, and they said there had been no application here."

By sponsoring the other "sub zones," Jones said, the Port of Sacramento would receive an annual fee from the computer company of about $15,000 per year.

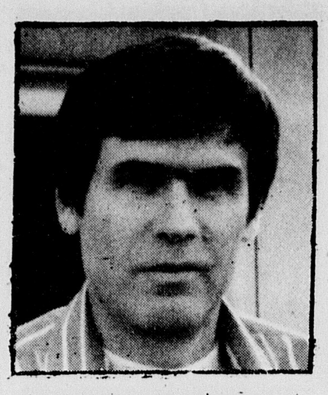
The Woodland complex planned for foreign trade zone status encompasses 800,000 of the project's 3.2 million square feet planned by the company.

Meanwhile, the port has made an application with the federal commerce department for new free trade status on 672 new acres of its own, both north and south of the barge canal, said Jones. That application is expected to be processed later this year.

"This gives us an edge on doing things like this deal with Hewlett-Packard," said Jones.

Visiting the Viet Nam 'Healing Wall' in Capitol Park

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Last Sunday afternoon my wife and I took our youngest son, Kyle, to see the half scale Vietnam War Memorial which was on display in Sacramento's Capitol Park. It is one of five traveling "Healing Walls" which currently crisscross the country, and it was in Sacramento for the first three days of this week. It is modeled after Maya Lin's much respected Washington D.C. Vietnam Veterans Memorial which commemorates the 58,202 American men and women who lost their lives in the Vietnam war.

The Wall That Heals, as it is called, is a smaller, 250-foot version of Ms. Lin's creation which was erected with the following four design criteria: it had to be reflective and contemplative in character; harmonize with its surroundings; contain all the names of those who died in the Vietnam war; and make no political statement.

The half scale portable replicas are in constant demand throughout the country and a backlog of requests has made it necessary to create a sixth traveling Wall, which is being constructed by veterans groups in Lake County, Illinois. Since not everyone can go to Washington D.C. to see the original, the half scale replicas have become one of the best ways for many Americans to pay their respects to those who died in this country's longest military engagement. The traveling Walls have also proved helpful in educating people about the Vietnam war and its ongoing societal consequences.

When we arrived in Capitol Park, a number of politicians and military personnel were making speeches, so my wife and I took our son over to the California Vietnam Veteran's Memorial, which was nearby. I showed him the large map of Vietnam which is engraved into one of the walkways, and he was impressed by the fact that he could stand right on top of a whole country. I pointed out some of the places where I had spent time while I was in Vietnam, but he didn't seem too impressed. He was more interested in the life-size bronze statues depicting American soldiers firing their M16's and throwing hand grenades.

As we made our way back over to the half scale Vietnam Veterans Memorial, my eleven-year-old son seemed to quickly sense that it wasn't a place where he should be running around and making a lot of noise. He looked at all the adults who were standing quietly in front of the black panels with serious expressions on their faces and asked me, almost in a whisper, "Is your name on one of those things?"

"No, but some people I knew are."

"If your dad's name was up there," explained my wife, "you wouldn't even be here. Those are the names of all the people who died in the Vietnam war."

My son nodded, thought it all over for a few moments, and then asked a question only an eleven-year-old can. "Dad, don't they give anyone credit for living?"

A very nice and thoughtful volunteer working for the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund (a non-profit organization which helps protect, preserve, and maintain the panels) explained to me how the 'Healing Walls' are set up. Names are inscribed in chronological order, including the 250-plus new names which have been added to the Wall since 1982. She assisted me in locating the names I had come to see, and I waited patiently for a place in front of panel 19-West to open up.

On line 3 was Michael Lawhon, and just below him, on line 6, was James Woods. As I thought back on how kind and gentle Mike was, and how big and indestructible Jim had seemed, my wife motioned for me to join her in reading a few of the notes and cards which had been left behind by earlier visitors.

One read: Dear Dad - I never really got to know you, but I still miss you. I hope things are peaceful. Your daughter.

Part of another said: You were a wonderful son. Rest well.

On the back of a Valentine's Day card were the words: To Ed, my first real love. I miss you. Lovingly, Judy.

I returned to Capitol Park yesterday with my father, brother and his three sons. As we were walking through the California Vietnam Veterans Memorial on our way to see the half scale 'Healing Wall', my brother pointed out the one short quote which I have long felt best memorializes those who served in Vietnam: All gave some, some gave all.

NOTE: If you would like to see the half scale Vietnam Veterans Memorial, it returns to northern California in the spring, when it will be in Berkeley from March 20-23.

West Sacramento's Willie Jorrin delighted his boxing fans on Monday night with a 7th round KO of George Parra. Jorrin improved his undefeated record to 16-0, (9 KOs) in front of a wild crowd of 1,565 at the Memorial Auditorium. Parra's record fell to 29-2. Promoter Don Chargin is planning to have monthly fights at the newly remodeled auditorium.

Chargin has targeted Enrique Jupiter of Mexico as Jorrin's next opponent on Thursday, March 20. Jupiter is the WBA's No. 7 ranked junior featherweight. In a six-round bout, another West Sac fighter, Gilbert Martinez, battled Eric Brown of Las Vegas to a bloody draw. Martinez started slow in the first couple of rounds, but turned the fight around in the last two rounds to gain a draw in a fight that had both fighters visiting the doctor for some stitches afterwards.

The Sacramento Kings (21-28) start the second half of the season three games behind the 24-25 mark they had at this point last season. If the playoffs started today, the Kings would have the eighth playoff spot in the Western Conference, the same place they reached in last year's playoffs.

The Kings are home for five games before they take off to the East Coast. The Kings were scheduled to play Utah yesterday night and the Clippers (Sports Channel) on Thursday. The Golden State Warriors invade the Arco for a 6 p.m. game on Sunday, then the Timberwolves on Tuesday and the New York Knicks close out the homestand on Thursday, Feb. 20.

Riverfront property: a judgment call

There was a memorable time a few years ago when West Sacramento was in a state of indignation over its three adult bookstores, and the populace generally wanted its government to close these businesses down in order to 'clean up' West Sacramento.

Then-councilman Mike McGowan (now a county supervisor) asked the assembled throng at one public hearing if they truly wanted the city to go ahead, warning of litigation and other costs that would accumulate.

"It will be expensive," he warned.

Either by giving their affirmation, or by remaining silent, West Sacramento went along. Closing the sex shops was what West Sacramento wanted, and the city did it. Using health and safety law as a shield, the porn shops were closed.

And it was expensive.

The city faces another, potentially "expensive" situation with the offer of a 42-acre riverfront parcel of land from the troubled Lighthouse Marina development.

The developers hope the city will take the property, relieving them of some development burdens on the rest of their project.

City staff generally favors the deal, too, looking forward to the time they get to help design something for the acreage.

Indeed, the land is "prime." It is located on West Sacramento's riverbank, directly across from the junction of the American and Sacramento Rivers and Sacramento's Discovery Park.

Visions of a future parksite built around something commercial, such as an office project, are appealing.

But it would be expensive.

The only cost the city staff has quantified so far is the $33,000 per year the acquisition would cost by taking the land off the private tax rolls. Other costs, including the cost of maintaining the land while it sits idle, have not been quantified although they probably could be.

The question remains a judgment call.

If West Sacramento accepts this property, it should be prepared for an expense of both time and money, in the hopes of building something unique years from now.

Is this something the residents want to see?

Now is the time to speak up. It's a judgment call for the public to make, and to relay to their city council.

Questions on Heidi

I want to thank Margaret Halford for her very important letter concerning the tragic death of Heidi Ubrick. It was addressed "To whom it may concern" and there are many local parents that can be counted in that category.

It is easy to sit back after the fact and be an armchair critic. I don't want to denigrate the local police and their search for Heidi after they finally decided she was officially missing. I saw a T.V. clip of the police out on a boat in the pouring rain scouring the river for her. I also can sympathize with the difficulty of "grilling" young teenagers who are determined to "cop" to nothing. I have that experience in my own home on a regular basis. But that said, there are unanswered questions:

1. Why was there such an abysmal breakout of communication in the follow-up of Margaret Halford's important and timely information?

I vaguely remember some problem several years ago about the West Sacramento police not having access to needed transmittal frequencies owned by Woodland. But I didn't realize Woodland was dispatching our emergency calls. Maybe that's why I had such a hard time explaining where Southport was located to a dispatcher several months ago when I reported someone repeatedly shooting a rifle in our vicinity. I though she must be new on the job. Maybe the dispatchers should be physically taken on a "cook's tour" of our town so they are more familiar with the territory.

2. Isn't there a search and rescue team available for these kinds of emergencies?

If Heidi had been lost in the mountains, there would have been teams of people with dogs on the scene immediately. As we prayed and kept vigil, I kept wondering why they didn't call in a unit from the military base to help search the rice mill. Why did officials wait almost a week to bring in high powered lights and someone who was an expert on the maze of passages in the mill? If a lack of police funding and personnel is involved, I hope the Chief will openly address the issue. The community should be alerted that the department needs more money to respond to emergencies in an appropriate manner.

3. As Krista Ubrick asked in an article in the Sacramento Bee..."I have to keep up my place...so aren't there rules for these companies, too?"

The answer by Joe Goeden was "There is only so much we can do because of private property rights" seems rather weak. If I have an old refrigerator on my property and a child climbs into it and suffocates...I am liable. If a child wanders into an ungated home and falls into a pool and drowns, the owners are liable. If the rice mill gates were in disrepair and children are freely skateboarding and wandering around the property, why aren't the owners liable? The Bee says a city official who asked not to be identified said the owner of the mill was planning even before the tragedy to have the mill razed. If every thing is on the "up and up" -- why is the city official asking not to be identified?

4. Local coverage of the search and outcome were excellent but why didn't papers publish (let alone follow up) on the questions and concerns raised by Heidi's family and addressed to City officials after Heidi's funeral?

I got more information from the grapevine and reading the Sacramento Bee than I did reading hometown newspapers. I waited for both papers this week expecting to see frontpage stories addressing follow-up issues to this terrible loss of innocent life. Nothing. Nada. Not on page one, two, three...no where. Why? I hope the fact that this property is the centerpiece of the Triangle Redevelopment Area (a huge monetary investment) did not factor into the lack of investigative reporting. What if Heidi came from an upper middle class family -- would the story be dropped so quickly? If journalists become muzzled by political considerations (which effect advertising and revenues) what hope do we have to ever know the truth?

I applaud all the police, firemen, and volunteers on an individual basis who put forth a heroic effort to find Heidi. I know some of them risked their own safety to try and find her. But the community needs some answers from city officials. I assume they are keeping mum in fear of impending lawsuits but the city government serves the entire community not just prominent developers.

My heart goes out to Heidi's family. May God bless and comfort them in their terrible loss.

Area code change

Re: "Many call area code change a bad idea," I had earlier suggested that we simply add a zero to existing phone numbers like we added 2 digits back around 1950. I talked to a Public Utilities Commission official and he said that very soon we would probably do just that; however, the machinery was not set up for 8 digits locally; thus, it was easier to add more area codes. But does not adding more area codes give phone companies more excuses to raise our billings since calling from one area code to another is a major reason to label a phone call as "long distance" with surcharges for same? (Another reason is total distance.)

This sounds comparable to "the year 2000 problem" that has been forecasted for the nation's computers...surely neither was "planned obsolescence," huh?

With all of the new portable phones hitting us, the need for more new phone numbers will increase. Besides so many having to change their business cards, letterheads, etc., more folks will have to dial three extra digits -- and pay more -- until certain computer-like machinery is updated. This will lead to less service for more money unless the PUC orders rate reductions to compensate consumers.

From Marna

Anyone feeling sorry for Gwnet or Clinton for the funding issues with the FPPC need to know more about the problem of selectively enforced legislation and government employees with an agenda.

The FPPC (Fair Political Practices Commission) Bulletin of February 1997 states some very interesting things for politicians. First, there were meetings about campaign funding and regulations that interested people were invited to, yet myself and no one I asked heard or was notified about the meetings until a month after they took place.

The FPPC on page 2 actually threatens anyone legally going after government employees for giving out false information or misleading candidates. It has the pompos attitude that it is above the law and that it is untouchable. And the statement implies that any FPPC activity, even the fraudulent ones are acceptable, because they are "government people."

This brings up the need for term limits for federal and state workers on the administrative levels. After dealing with people who have selective memories and self-serving interpretations for codes and laws, toleration for government employees in positions of authority has become an attitude of disgust. This attitude has carried over into my political views, because I wonder where the politicians are who protect the citizens. Grouping them together in a ringworm which is only is subdued by money, like a bacterial fungus. At least the taxpayers and voters should get ethical oversight from them, but they only get more regulations which are only enforced when it serves the "interest" of a political agenda.

Look at the vote on 218. Politicians seem concerned that the taxpayers actually want control of the process of funding. They won't be able to invest costs which are diverted or unexplained when citizens start paying attention. You shouldn't be able to put in those tax funded stadiums or other projects if you don't take care of the city infrastructure (roads, levees, sewage, disaster planning, lighting, etc.). After all, the people paying the taxes are entitled to responsible distribution of funds to take care of where they live...FIRST. People not able to get a police officer when there is a need, unable to get their street drains to stop flooding,

This week's comment:

I would like to ask you and the people of this city what the hidden motives are for this survey on mobile homes.

From what I can see in the readings, the city is not stating what they really want to do.

Are they going to regulate mobile homes further, beyond how they're already regulated?

A ban has been placed on the wearing of old shoes, so that the ladies may not get their toes mangled during the evening. The dance held last Saturday night under the auspices of Fire Commissioner Lear and D. Pellini was a very enjoyable affair with a large crowd present to respond to the jazz music that was furnished by a good band. During the evening refreshments will be served in the way of soft drinks but not intoxicants of any character will be permitted in the hall or outside of it by Constable Buckingham. Ladies are admitted free to these dances and the charge of admission for men is only 50 cents.

Last Saturday afternoon at "death curve" (Fifth and Ann Streets) an automobile carrying a Colorado license number and occupied by two men turned off the embankment and was wrecked in the gully west of the roadway. Both front wheels were smashed to timber and the steering gear was knocked completely out of joint. The two occupants were pinned underneath the car but when extricated were found to be unhurt. Had the men been sober they would surely have been killed. God takes care of His own.

Sunday forenoon an automobile mechanic, driving home to the Monument Ranch Mike Steinauer's Dodge roadster, became confused on the road near Rose Orchard and drove off the embankment. He had just repaired the car and was taking it to its owner, but after trying to knock over a large oak tree he decided it was better to return the Dodge for further repairs. He was also returned to a Sacramento hospital for personal attention because in the melee he fractured a leg.

SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED BY MARTY FAMILY

On the evening of Tuesday, February 6th, Mr. and Mrs. Antone Marty celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at their home on the Monument Ranch, six miles north of Washington.

Eighty invited guests filled the ample rooms of the Marty home and a wedding feast that burdened great tables was cooked in such bounteous measure that every guest left the Marty home blessing their host for the magnificent feed they had enjoyed.

The celebration was a grand home affair with many guests from outside points even as far north as Red Bluff and as far south as Bakersfield.

Sacramento citizens predominated among those invited and among others might be mentioned Wm. Trust and Rev. Father Marcucci.

An old and reliable member of the Marty family who has been with them since their first wedding day, Mike Steinauer, was chief cook for the occasion. Over a broiling fire in the kitchen filled with good things he stood all day cooking turkey and chicken to his inimitable taste and to say that the guests enjoyed these things would be putting it mildly.

Mr. and Mrs. Marty were recipients of many beautiful mementoes given to them on this occasion.

Although Steinauer worked hard to do justice to his duties he left the home immediately following the dinner to see that the cows pasturing at Dunnigan were being properly taken care of by the men in charge of the Dunnigan Ranch.

Russell Crase was down from Grass Valley yesterday to visit relatives and friends around Washington. He was accompanied by his uncle and wife. They returned yesterday evening.

SCHOOL STATEMENTS MADE BY VAN TASSEL ARE CONTRADICTED

West Sacramento, Calif.,
February 15, 1923.

Dear Sir: In your issue of February 10th apepared an article which purported to be a correction of statements previously published in reference to the Riverside School. As a usual thing a correction is presupposed to be correct, but in this instance the so-called correction needs both correction and comment, in order to put the matter of the school properly before the reading public. As the writer of that communication has, for more than two years, neither lived in the Sacramento River district nor taken any interest in its affairs, it is only to be expected that the communication should contain inaccuracies.

It is conceded that the first statement in regard to the school was incorrect in some particulars. The building was erected for a school twenty-five or thirty years ago and was well situated with regard to the center of population, and entirely adequate for the needs of the district, but times have changed most materially. The center of population has moved from the river to the center of the district, and of necessity the school will follow. It is true there is more than one child in the immediate vicinity of the present site but of the forty-six enrolled only eight come from east of the railroad, and none will have to come from a greater distance for the new site than for the present site.

To those who are familiar with the present conditions, it is a known fact that the teacher does leave her automobile parked on Jefferson Boulevard near the church, walks from that point to the railroad and rides the balance of the way in the school bus.

Suggestion that the future may see the need of a school on the river front can be very properly answered by the argument used by your correspondent some two years ago, when an effort was made to consolidate the Riverview school district with the Washington school district. At that time he was a very ardent worker for fewer schools but better ones. If an effort to consolidate schools so widely separated as the Broderick school and the Riverview school was deemed worthy of support, why consider anything except consolidation for the future?

The building is in a deplorable condition and should have been abandoned five years ago. The present Board of Trustees, as well as the teacher, has done all that is possible to protect the school property since it was turned over to them, but it was then in such an advanced state of dilapidation that re-building was the only solution.

Anyone who is familiar with the Riverview district knows that the school in its present location does not serve the majority of the people and it is further inadequate because there are some forty-six children crowded in one room with one teacher trying to do them justice, a number far in excess of the number specified in the school law.

The matter of location was taken care of by the election recently held, and the bond issue to provide funds for the erection of a modern two-room building is to be voted upon on March 10th. It is expected and hoped that the bond issue will carry, as it will be the best way to finance the new building, but if the election should fail, the money can and will be raised by direct tax, which will of course make a heavier burden upon the taxpayer.

Rather apart from the subject at hand, it would be interesting to know from what motives springs the interest of your correspondent, as he resides outside of the Riverview district, as the result of a petition to the Board of Supervisors to change the boundaries of the Washington school district so as to include in that district the Van Tassel property.

Thanking you for this opportunity to present our case to the public, we are,

Respectfully,
J. H. BRYAN,
M. M. TEIXEIRA,
MRS. G. SILLANO,
Trustees Sacramento River District.

THREE HOURS' SICKNESS WITH HEART TROUBLE TOOK CHARLES HUNT

Last Saturday, February 10, at 11 p. m., Charley Hunt was around town, jovially passing time with many old friends, and three hours later his remains were taken to an undertaking parlor. He succumbed to heart trouble.

Hunt had been a resident of Washington during the past fifteen years and was a native of Sacramento. He was 62 years and eight months old at the date of his death, and was a member of Red Jacket Tribe and of Metamora Council, Improved Order of Red Men.

Charley Hunt was a jovial, sociable man of many excellent qualities. He attended strictly to his own affairs, never interfering with others and permitting others to do just as they saw fit so long as they did not interfere with him personally. Several years ago he was married and leaves a daughter, Ruth Hunt, and a sister, Mrs. Hattie Beattie, and a brother, Robert Hunt of Sacramento. His funeral, which was very largely attended by friends and relatives, took place last Tuesday from the Garlick Undertaking Home in Sacramento, and interment was in the family plot in the City Cemetery.

MUCH NEEDED IMPROVEMENT MADE AT RAILROAD CROSSING

At the crossing of the San Francisco and Sacramento R. R. between the State highway in West Sacramento and West Sacramento headquarters a badly needed repair job has been done by the section foreman, William J. Trefon.

A few weeks ago this paper complained about this crossing because the steel tracks protruded several inches above the surrounding gravel forming a veritable menace to rubber tires as well as steel rims.

Mr. Trefon's attention was called to this condition and he immediately set his gang to make the necessary repairs. Residents of the district are wondering what benign notion overtook the railroad authrities to perform this necessary repair work.

Police log

Feb. 6, 11: 38 p.m.

A 4th St. woman said her 37-year old boyfriend hit her, strangled her and pulled a knife on her. Police responded, and the man (still on scene) was arrested.

Feb. 9, 9:20 a.m.

An officer saw a 37-year old transient man at a supermarket problem approach and stop a woman who appeared to be in her 60s. The transient then approached a man loading his groceries in his car. He told the officer, when contacted, that he was soliciting bus fare. He said he had drank a 22-oz. beer earlier. He was cited and released under the city's new panhandling limiting ordinance.

Feb. 9, 3:45 p.m.

A man and woman were reported fighting at a West Capitol address. The woman reported her 24-year old live-in boyfriend had hit her with a belt and cord, and had attempted to smother her with a pillow the night before. Bruises were visible on her chest and there was a red mark on her buttocks. The man was booked.

Feb. 10, 1:17 a.m.

Two men with hoods were reported trying to break into a Rice Ave. business. Officers responded and detained two.

Feb. 10, 1:48 a.m.

Three men took two 12-packs and two 18-packs of beer from a Sacramento Ave. market. They fled on foot.

Feb. 10, 2:51 a.m.

A rear license plate was reported stolen from an auto parked on Merkley Ave.

Feb. 10, 7:50 a.m.

A 12-year old boy, home alone, called 9-1-1 to say someone was trying to break in to his Holland Dr. home. When he saw the door from the garage open, he yelled for the person to go away. Police arrived and made sure the home was secure.

Feb. 10, 12:29 p.m.

An Anna St. home was reported burglarized while the residents were sleeping. The thief had gained entry by reaching through a broken window near the front door to unlock the door.

Feb. 10, 1:04 p.m.

On May St., a 9-year old boy called police on behalf of his non-English speaking mother, saying that six youths had just pulled his sister's hair nearby and thrown things at them.

Feb. 10, 4:12 p.m.

Someone stole an alternator from a forklift at a West Sacramento business, after climbing a fence.

Feb. 10, 5:20 p.m.

A 16-year old girl called police and wanted to press charges on an assault to her 27-year old sister who was five months pregnant. The victim, though was "very uncooperative" with police and walked away while an officer tried to advise her.

Feb. 10, 11 p.m.

An officer stopped a 33-year old Sacramento Ave. man for failing to stop his bicycle at a stop sign. A vial of methamphetamines was found in the man's possession, and he was arrested.

LETTERS from p. 5

lights on their streets, crosswalks, sidewalks, etc., are erked at government for not being able to do the job they were implemented to do.

Frustration over watching government bodies go into business with taxdollars and competing with local businesses using tax money, makes the process lack any respect and is quickly diminishing the dignity of politicians. The esteems politicians seem to muster comes from that Digging into your pockets without you being able to do anything about it. It's a Bully mentality, where people do unto others as it benefits them politically, rather than watch over what they were intrusted to do.

Speaking of entrusted, the traffic engineer is telling the schools that they do not have money to create "safe school routes," because it will cost $50,000 to do a study on crosswalks and stopsigns and bring a lot of problems (sidewalks, curbs, etc.) and they are not sure of liability issues. Well the stopsigns and traffic signals are obtainable through cal-trans or public works (already available) and the Southport region seems to get around liability issues just fine (i.e., given signs, etc., without workorders), but the older areas of the city get the runaround.

Also, the evacuation plans for the city must be asked for by you, by calling the schools, clerk, fire department, police department. People need to ask SPECIFIC questions. NO evasive answers should be accepted. The senior center thinks that convalescent homes will be notified or that there is a plan. Asking around, individuals need to check into things on behalf of relatives or friends. If there is a notification plan the city needs to get on the ball and notify those who live here. Mark Montemayor and Chris Cabaldon were at the Meadowdale meeting and Mark mentioned using 1430 on the radio, but nothing is for sure. Sacramento had a plan a didn't follow it, it would be nice to know there IS a plan that is available to the general public. Having a "secret" plan is a unique approach getting the public informed...

Going on to Yolo stuff. The girl who oversaw the voting problems last November and whose maudlin plea of ineptness and the lack of ability to follow voting instructions, count or read the alphabet, has been rewarded by her close friend County Clerk Tony Bernhart and the other supervisors with the supervisor's position available by appointment. The "strangeness" of Yolo never ceases to amazes us.

them, this reserve capacity to deal with "infiltrating" groundwater is built into the plans.

If the city opts to build a new plant in West Sacramento, that plant will probably be built to handle the existing sewage demands of the city (around eight million gallons per day) plus an additional eight million gallons of new growth, for a total of 16 m.g.d. But it would be designed for peak flows of several times that.

The other highly publicized option is to contract with Sacramento's sewage plant (designed for 181 m.g.d., and now operating at 145 m.g.d.) for treatment of West Sacramento's wastes.

The city released an analysis of these options and others last week. The analysis is available through the community development department on South River Road.

through there and didn't see anything."

A second officer heard the call and drove around to the freeway vantage point, also failing to spot the children.

When the parent of a juvenile witness called police to report the accident at the rice mill, Farmer added, emergency workers responded, but the search turned up nothing. Meanwhile, while enough time had elapsed for the girl to have left town on her home, interviews with family members indicated that this was probably not the case for the teenager, who was not known as a runaway.

Two days after the disappearance, the police stepped up efforts, Farmer said, with press releases to regional media and coordinated efforts to follow up leads on possible sightings of the child.

"Here's the issue," he said. "It's the issue of a missing child versus a runaway child. On any given day, we're going to have kids who run away from home. Obviously, if you have a nine year old child that ran away from home it's going to get a lot of attention. If a kid went to the store and didn't come back, and that was unusual for the child, it's going to get a lot of attention. But we get runaways of older kids about two times a week. How much attention it gets depends on age and circumstances."

"But anytime you have a young child missing and you can't explain what happened you start with the worst case, and work backwards. We weren't sure whether (Heidi) was abducted. . . We were getting people saying, 'I think I saw her here,' or 'I think I saw her there,' " added Farmer.

Initial searches didn't find the girl's body after her hundred foot drop from near the roof of the silos into an interior cavity. Searches with dogs didn't find her either.

After a week with no answers except the juvenile witness's report the girl had fallen, and various reports of sightings of the girl throughout the Sacramento region, Farmer said "some feelings I had" led him to organize another search of the silos. This time, they found the girl, who had apparently died instantly.

Farmer said his best guess is the youth, who had visited the site before, was throwing things on the roof of the silos with her friends. She apparently had been standing on a sawhorse leaning into an access hole in the side of a shed on top when she fell in, and through a "2 foot by 2 foot" access hole in the floor, headfirst to her death.

The accident left West Sacramento not only saddened after a highly-publicized search, and the hope of finding the Golden State student alive, but also asking questions about the safety of the abandoned mill.

Security was spotty at the site, one city council member told the News-Ledger two weeks ago, with fences often down and a security guard service apparently cancelled.

Meanwhile, Scanvik Corporation, which owns the riverfront property, has applied for permits to demolish the building, which some have termed "an attractive nuisance."

A spokesperson for the city building permit department said demolition will probably occur around Feb. 20, and because the demolition effort itself can often pose "an attractive nuisance" to passing motorists straining for a view, it will probably occur at night to avoid posing a hazard to traffic on the nearby freeway.

A city spokesman said that, as of last week, no legal actions have been filed involving the city in any liability over the 13-year old's death.
